

Please stop trying to curb the innovation that has come by way of satellite radio. If millions of users choose to pay $10 per month for superior programming then local radio stations must not be doing their jobs. If any FM or AM radio station in my area offered programming close to the level of XM's I would be happy to listen to them, but unfortunately they do not. XM's traffic and weather is just another innovation allowing listeners to preview weather and traffic conditions in their area and others greatly improving planning on trips, something that local FM cannot do because of range limits. Please do not make mistakes that will simply prevent the improvement of radio service, both AM/FM and satellite, by creating arbitrary laws against healthy competition.

Thank you,

William Cummings
